

Communities of Faith and Their Role in Civil Rights Movements, Then and Now

Friday, February 12, 2016

9-12pm

Fromm Hall, University of San Francisco

The San Francisco Interfaith Council in collaboration with the University of San Francisco's Office of Diversity Engagement & Community Outreach, invite lay and ordained congregation leaders to participate in a half-day workshop to examine the historical role of communities of faith in the Civil Rights Movement, listen to the new voices of those leading today's peaceful protests, and rethink/recommit ourselves to actively and collaboratively reclaiming and exerting our rightful prophetic voice in order to make a difference and meet the pressing challenges of the day.

Program

8:30-9:00am

Registration

9:00-9:05am

Opening and Program Review

Michael Pappas, Executive Director, San Francisco Interfaith Council

9:05-9:10am

University Welcome

Rev. Paul J. Fitzgerald, S.J., President, University of San Francisco

9:10-9:15am

Opening Prayer

Abu Qadir Al Amin, Imam, San Francisco Muslim Community Center

9:15-9:20am

Introduction of Keynote Speaker

Dr. Mary J. Wardell, Vice Provost, University of San Francisco

9:20-10:00am

Keynote Address

Dr. Clarence Jones

Diversity Visiting Scholar, University of San Francisco

10:00-10:10am

Break

10:10-11:00am

Community Panel Response

Moderator:

G.L. Hodge, Chair, San Francisco Interfaith Council

Panelists:

Rev. Dr. Donna E. Allen, Founder, New Revelation Community Church

Phelicia Jones, SEIU 1021 & Justice 4 Mario Woods Coalition

Sarah Toutant, Black Student Union President, University of San Francisco

11:00-11:40am

Table Discussions

11:40-12:00pm

Call to Action and Closing

Abby Porth, Associate Executive Director, Jewish Community Relations Council

Shamann Walton, Executive Director, Young Community Developers

Join the Conversation

#CRMfaith

This event was made possible with the generous support of the

San Francisco Foundation

Cover Design by Carlos Calles

